

Article republishing guidelines

- We encourage organizations to republish our articles but please contact us (info@deprescribingnetwork.ca) to request permission.
- You must credit the authors and their institutions.
- You must credit the Canadian Deprescribing Network and include a link to our website (<https://www.deprescribingnetwork.ca/>).
- You cannot edit the articles, but you may contact us (info@deprescribingnetwork.ca) to request edits with the author's permission.

Quotes

You can quote the authors provided you include a link back to the article URL.

Translation

You may contact us (info@deprescribingnetwork.ca) to request to translate an article (French and English versions are currently available).

Signed consent / copyright release forms are not required, providing you are following these guidelines.

Images

Ensure you have the license to republish images from our articles. The majority of our images are purchased stock images. Most can be reused within the republished article as long as it is for non-commercial purposes. Please check with us and do not include images you do not have a license to use to avoid infringing copyrights.

Social sharing

Of course, we love when you share our content via social media. If you want this to catch our attention, please use the following handles and hashtags:

Twitter: @DeprescribeNet

Facebook: @deprescribingnetwork

Hashtag (across both Twitter and Facebook): #deprescribing
